

MEDALS GIVEN TO THREE POLICEMEN FOR BRAVERY.

Roundsman Bolan, Quinn and Mills Honored To-Day by Mayor Low at City Hall.

Three brave policemen who risked their lives in saving the lives of others were rewarded to-day by the receipt of medals commemorating their acts of heroism. The medals were presented to the men at noon by Mayor Low at the City Hall.

There were present, in addition to the Mayor, Philip Rhineland, James J. Cogswell, Col. George Moore Smith, Peter F. Meyer, Col. Kipp, clerk of the Police Department, Commissioner Partridge, and about forty policemen who had in previous years received medals of honor.

The presentation took place in the Aldermanic Chamber, which had been decorated with American flags. Mayor Low called each man before him and recited the story of his rescue and the medal was handed to Col. Partridge and the medals. The Commissioner pinned them on the breasts of their respective winners while cheers and hand-clapping came from the other policemen present.

Mayor Made a Speech.
Then the Mayor made a little speech in which he said it was well to dwell at times on the character of the police force as revealed by the incidents which had led to the presentation. He said that such deeds were a guarantee to the citizens of the heroism of the policemen and a source of pride to all.

In each case the policemen rescued drowning men. Those who were honored with the medals were James S. Bolan, roundsman at the Union Market station; Robert Quinn, roundsman at the Charles street station, and Robert E. Mills, roundsman at the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station. They were all patrolmen at the time of the rescue, and their promotion in rank followed their acts as a reward from the department.

Roundsman Bolan, who received the Rhineland medal, was a patrolman at the Old Slip station. May 16, 1901, he was on a ferry-boat in the East River when he saw a rowboat containing John Monahan, of No. 336 Broome street, and John Donohue, of No. 294 West Houston street, capsizing in midstream.

Bolan sprang overboard and swam to the men. He caught one after the other and swam with them to the boat, to which they clung until other help came.

Quinn's Brave Work.
Roundsman Quinn, who received the Isaac Bell medal, was a patrolman attached to the Central Office on Dec. 11, 1901, and chanced to be that night at the foot of West Tenth street. He heard a splash and then cried from the river, and running to the pier jumped in after John Phillips, of No. 128 High street, Brooklyn, who had fallen in. He got him to the pier and was being helped to get him out by John J. Harman, of

No. 185 Perry street, when the latter fell in also.
Quinn succeeded in getting Phillips out and then he went back after Harman and dragged him ashore. He was so exhausted himself by exposure that he was laid up for a week.
Roundsman Mills was a patrolman at the Amsterdam avenue station when his chance to distinguish himself and win the Peter F. Meyer medal came, on Aug. 25, 1901. He saw a boat containing Jacob Simon, of No. 239 Eighth avenue, and Harry Macy, of No. 495 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, capsizing. He swam out to them and dragged first one and then the other to safety.
The three men have received honorable mention for heroic work done prior to these instances.

MILLIONAIRE DUSS BRINGS HIS BAND

Leader of Co-Operative Profit-Sharing Community at Economy, Pa., Makes Debut at Metropolitan Opera-House

The newest bandmaster in town is a millionaire, John S. Duss, the leader of a co-operative profit-sharing community at Economy, Pa., and a clever musician, as he proved at his debut last evening in the Metropolitan Opera-House. He had a band of sixty musicians, and they played well under his leadership. They will do better when he has them in hand a little longer.

One of his compositions, a fantasy, descriptive of the battle of Manila, evoked the first encore, and Mr. Duss made a speech. He made several others later, not in a musical vein, however, but descriptive of his success as a profit-sharing manufacturer.

Mr. Duss and his band will begin a summer engagement at St. Nicholas Garden this evening.

RORAIMA PURSER NOT DYING.

Charles A. Thompson, purser of the steamship Roraima, shipwrecked by the eruption of Mount Pelee, is not critically ill, as was reported.

He is at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. A. Thomas, of No. 135 East Ninety-seventh street, and though his physician, Dr. Peer, says he is still suffering from irritation of the lungs and intestines caused by the inhalation of poisonous gases, he is able to be about.

He spends the greater part of his time in the open air. His sister says that within a few days he expects to return to sea.

WILD WEST SHOW IN HARLEM FIELD

Buffalo Bill Takes His Aggregation of Rough Riders and Savage Warriors to an Open Lot—Parade Marks Opening

Harlem is entertaining Buffalo Bill and his Wild West Show this week. The great caravan is tented on Olympia field, which occupies a space of two blocks from One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street to One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, between Lenox and Madison avenues.

Every Harlemit who owned a camera flocked to the field yesterday to snapshot the Indians and cowboys during the exciting process of tent-raising. Later in the day throngs of youngsters followed the picturesque Westerners during the afternoon jaunt.
At 9 o'clock this morning Harlem was treated to a Wild West parade. The cavalcade of rough riders and savage warriors of the plains passed through Seventh avenue from One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, thence to Amsterdam avenue, to Fifty-ninth street, then up Lexington avenue and back to the show grounds.

The show will be given on a larger scale in Harlem than the restricted area of Madison Square Garden allowed. The seats are under canvas, but the performance takes place on a vast arena under the open sky. The performance will take place rain or shine.
